Please add the following new claim·

--20. (New) An image decoding method for decoding an encoded bit stream formed by encoding images for each object, comprising the steps of:

decoding object display speed information from said encoded bit stream, the display speed information indicating a number of objects displayed per a unit time; and controlling the reconstruction of said encoded images encoded for each object, based on said decoded object display speed information.--